

UCLA

Mester

Title

[Contributors]

Permalink

<https://escholarship.org/uc/item/30b9r4v1>

Journal

Mester, 22(1)

Author

Mester, [No author]

Publication Date

1993

DOI

10.5070/M3221014409

Copyright Information

Copyright 1993 by the author(s). All rights reserved unless otherwise indicated. Contact the author(s) for any necessary permissions. Learn more at <https://escholarship.org/terms>

Contributor's Page

ROBERT NANA BAAH is presently a lecturer at Bethel College. He received his B.A. from the University of Ghana and his M.A. from the University of Alberta, Edmonton and is completing his Ph.D. at the University of Southern California. Mr. Baah specializes in contemporary literature of Spain and is now completing his doctoral dissertation entitled "El uso y el abuso de la historia en la metaficción postfranquista" at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles.

CLAUDIA MARGARITA BAUTISTA is currently a Master's student at UCLA specializing in Hispanic linguistics and Latin American literature. She also received her B.A. from UCLA.

ADRIANA BERGERO is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese at UCLA. She is presently working on an investigation regarding the discourse of alienation in the post-modernist discourse of Jorge Luis Borges, as well as a study about Latin American exile and the internalization of exoticism in the representation of Latin America.

SYLVIA C. BLYNN AVANOSIAN is presently a doctoral student in Romance Literature and Linguistics at UCLA. Ms. Blynn received both her B.A. and M.A. degrees from UCLA as well. She specializes in contemporary Latin American literature with an emphasis in the area of Spanish American, Brazilian and Chicano studies. Ms. Blynn is currently working on a study of the relationship between La guerra del fin del mundo, by Mario Vargas Llosa, and Os sertões, by Euclides da Cunha.

SANDRA DEL CUETO received her B.A. degree from Manhattan College and earned her M.A. at UCLA where she specializes in the literature of the Spanish Golden Age. Before dedicating herself to academic endeavor of her own, Ms. del Cueto taught High School at Los Angeles Unified School District for six years.

THOMAS J. DI SALVO is an Assistant Professor of Spanish at Eckerd

College. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin, Madison where he specialized in 18th and 19th Peninsular literature. Among his publications are his book entitled El arte cuentístico de Vicente Blasco Ibáñez as well as the articles "El costumbrismo bajo una nueva luz: Análisis de 'El último león de Blasco Ibáñez'" and "El descenso perpetuo y la búsqueda existencial en la poesía de José Angel Valenta." Currently he is working on a comparative study of divorce as a literary theme in four Spanish authors: Cervantes, Pardo Bazán, Blasco Ibáñez, and Elena Quiroga, as well as a film analysis of La boca del lobo de Francisco Lombardi

JENNIFER GARSON is a Master's student at UCLA in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese where she also received her B.A. degree. Ms. Garson specializes in contemporary Peninsular and Latin American literature.

JUANITA I. HEREDIA is also a Master's student at UCLA in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese specializing in women writers of the Americas. She received her B.A. in English and Spanish literature from U.C. Berkeley. Ms. Heredia will participate in the current poetry circles of San Francisco and plans to travel to England this summer to meet other scholars with similar interests.

ANTONIO JIMENEZ is presently a doctoral candidate in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese at UCLA specializing in contemporary Latin American narrative. He has previously published two articles in Mester: one on "El perseguidor" by Julio Cortázar as well as a book review on Sebold's edition of Bequer's Leyendas. Currently, Mr. Jiménez is completing his dissertation entitled "The Narrative Works of José Agustín: Onda and Postmodernity in Mexico."

BRIDGET KEVANE is a doctoral candidate in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese at UCLA. She received her B.A. from Sarah Lawrence College and her M.A. from New York University. Ms. Kevane specializes in Twentieth Century Latin American Literature and is presently working on her dissertation topic which ranges from El Inca, Rigoberta Menchú to Sandra Cisneros and Nuyorican and Puertorican writers.

EFRAIN KRISTAL is Associate Professor in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese at UCLA. Dr. Kristal received his Ph.D. from Stanford University and specializes in Latin American literature. He is the author of The Andes Viewed from the City. Literary and Political Discourse on the Indian in Peru 1848-1930 and has just completed a book entitled La tentación de la palabra. Arte literario y convicción política en la narrativa de Mario Vargas Llosa.

MERCEDES LIMON is also a doctoral student at UCLA. She received both her B.A. and M.A. from California State University, Los Angeles and specializes in Latin American Literature. A poet as well, Ms. Limón has published Sabor de tierra amarga, a collection of her lyric works. Her scholarly publications include "Modernismo y ciudad en la novela contemporánea," published in Mester in 1992. She is currently preparing for her qualifying exams.

JACQUELINE MITCHELL is a doctoral student at UCLA specializing in Twentieth Century Spanish and Latin American literature. She received her B.A. from Point Loma College and her M.A. from UCLA. She is currently preparing for publication an article on romantic theatre, as well as doing research on the Post-Franco Spanish novel.

M.J. MURATORE is an Associate Professor of French and Associate Director of Graduate Studies at the University of Missouri. Professor Muratore specializes in French literature of the seventeenth century as well as the phenomena of mimesis and metatextuality. Among her many publications are two books on Corneille including: Cornelian Theater: The Metadramatic Dimension, published in 1990; several articles on neo-classical theory and textuality. She has just completed a book-length study on mimesis in the neo-classical period and has also written articles on Francophone literature. Currently she is working in self-reflexivity in Molière's Dom Juan.

GLORIA OROZCO received her B.A. in psychology from UCLA, where she also completed her M.A. and is currently finishing her doctoral studies. Ms. Orozco specializes in contemporary Latin American theater, especially that of her native Colombia. She has previously published in Mester the article entitled, "Albalucia Angel y literatura fantástica". Soon she will publish her latest article, "La memoria en el corrido: los discursos de la historia".

JUAN CARLOS RAMIREZ is presently a master's student in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese at UCLA. Mr. Ramírez earned his B.A. degree from UCSD. He specializes in contemporary Latin American literature and is interested in the Mexican corrido and the Student Movement of 1968. Mr. Ramírez published an interview with Paco Ignacio Taibo II, also in Mester, which appeared in the Spring issue of 1992

JAVIER RANGEL received his M.A. and B.A. from San Diego State University. He is now a doctoral candidate at UCLA, with a specialization in Latin American Literature. He has also published an article entitled "De lo fantástico a lo alegórico: El llamado a la resistencia en The Shrunken Head of Pancho Villa". He is currently studying the development of Northern Mexican theater and Spanish-language theatre in Los Angeles.

MICHAEL RAY is a master's student in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese at UCLA. He received his B.A. in English from Loyola Marymount University in 1989 where he published several poems in the LMU Literature Review. Mr. Ray specializes in contemporary Latin American literature and poetry.

VERONICA RODRIGUEZ-SIFONTES is also a master's student in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese at UCLA. She received her B.A. in history from the University of the District of Columbia. Ms. Rodríguez-Sifontes specializes in contemporary Spanish American literature and, along with Juan Carlos Ramírez, has published an interview with Paco Ignacio Taibo II in Mester. She is currently working on a study of the collection of short stories entitled La luna no es pan de horno, by Laura Antillano, as well as an investigation regarding the play El juego, by Mariela Romero, both Venezuelan authors.